The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance for Claims 1-6, 14-15, 17-18, 20-22, 30 and 35-38: The best prior art of record, Kling et al neither discloses nor fairly suggests the limitation of, in a computer-implemented method performed for a financial institution having system resources for posting transactions to accounts, the steps of updating a plurality of existing balances associated with a first account by updating a first one of existing balances based on a first calculating, second calculating and an automatic adjustment, updating a second one of the existing balances based on the contribution of the first updated balance and updating a third one of the existing balances based on a contribution of the updated second existing balance, as set forth in Claims 1-6, 14-15, 17-18, 20-22 and 30. A similar concept is set out at steps d6, d61, d62m and d63 of Claims 35-38.

The Tsuchimoto reference is cited for its disclosure of accounting balances and their maintenance.
